

Focus On Youth

There are millions of Americans under the age of 18 with some form of physical disability. Our Adaptive Sports For Kids [ASK] program creates recreational opportunities for youth by providing access to the outdoors.

We maintain an extensive inventory of adaptive sports equipment to accommodate the growing number of youth participants in our programs. Our experienced team insures proper equipment fit and provides expert instruction in a safe social setting for children of all ages. A large percentage of our staff and volunteers are disabled, and serve as positive role models for our young participants.

Adaptive Adventures provides organizational support to and collaborates with many youth-oriented organizations throughout the United States. Our cutting edge Stars of Tomorrow youth sports camps continue to grow and change lives.

“Let no child sit on the sidelines.”

Adaptive Resource

Adaptive Adventures brings people together through outdoor sports and recreation. In addition to the activities and events we directly coordinate for individuals and groups, we also connect people with the information and contacts they need to make their outdoor experience a reality. Our publications and website serve as a resource to hundreds of nonprofit programs, equipment suppliers, and websites related to adaptive sports.

Adaptive Adventures also provides affordable assistance to programs and organizations seeking expertise: including specialized equipment, professional instructors, and event management. Our staff and volunteers regularly network with adaptive recreation specialists worldwide. If we don't offer a service you are looking for, we know someone who does!

Education & Outreach

It is important for our disabled clients and their friends and families, to understand the value of outdoor sports, recreation, and exercise. We work with many programs, educational institutions, rehabilitation hospitals and community groups to increase awareness and actively involve more people in adaptive sports and recreation. Contact us to design and implement a customized presentation or program that meets your specific needs.
